about meditation, first was translated by

Richard Wilhelm, a friend of Carl Jung.

Jung wrote a forward and an appendix for the book. The meditation technique described in the book is a straightforward, silent method; the book's description of meditation has been characterized as 'Zen with details'. The meditation technique, set forth in poetic language, reduces to a formula of sitting, breathing and contemplating. Sitting primarily relates to a straight posture.

Breathing is described in detail, primarily in terms of the esoteric physiology of the path of "qi" (also known as "chi" or "ki"), or breath energy. The energy path associated with breathing has been described as similar to an internal wheel vertically aligned with the spine. When breathing is steady, the wheel turns forward, with breath energy rising in back and descending in front. Bad breathing habits (or bad posture, or even bad thoughts) may cause the wheel not to turn, or move backward, inhibiting the circulation of essential breath energy. In and with results, similar to those described in JJ Semple's DGF. The Secret of the Golden Flower: A Kundalini Meditation Method is that book, a much anticipated interpretive guide to the SGF as well as a sequel to his DGF autobiographical kundalini memoir.

Since the publication of Deciphering the Golden Flower One Secret at a Time (ASIN:

Kundalini is the formative, biological they are simply unaware of its actuality and its

Says JJ Semple, “Did I take every word and every passage in the Wilhelm version literally? No more than I take every word or passage in the Bible, or in Cleary’s translation, literally. waste of time. Success would be found in doing, not in fantasizing.” In fact, the SGF has two objectives.
One, it's a manual for kundalini meditation, even though the term

borne out by centuries of realized practitioners who practiced the method, a fact vetted by contemporaries such as an explanation of ontology, which the dictionary defines as:

“the branch of metaphysics dealing
being.” Neither

not separated in the text; they're mingled together, which, as you might imagine, makes understanding problematic. Says JJ Semple, "Although the ontological portions obscured the practical aspects to some degree, I decided to forge ahead. Ultimately, once the meditation took its course, once the light started to circulate, I was catapulted out of the limiting duality of the physical world into the metaphysical actuality of 'the great One...which has nothing above it.'" In short, he learned that enlightenment comes with practice.
